

MARCY SARTAIN MYERS

MARCY WAS RAISED IN OAKMAN, ALABAMA BY HER PARENTS, MARK AND CAROL SARTAIN. MARCY ATTENDED

Oakman High School where she excelled in softball, basketball, and volleyball.

Marcy had a love for the game of softball from an early age. As the starting short-stop, she was a 3-time Daily Mountain Eagle player of the year for softball. Marcy was also awarded All-State softball for 3 years. During her sophomore year, Marcy helped lead the Lady Cats to their first AHSAA State Championship. In 2009, her senior year, Marcy helped lead the Lady Cats to a second-place finish at the AHSAA State Tournament, she was named the 2A hitter of the year, and she was awarded the Bryant Jordan Award.

Marcy started playing varsity basketball in the eighth grade as point guard. In her senior year, she led her Oakman basketball team to a 20-7 record. At point guard, Marcy averaged 22 points, 7 steals, 6 rebounds and 4 assists per game, with a career high single game point total of 42 points. Marcy also gained the title of Daily Mountain Eagle 2009 Basketball Player of the Year.

Her successful high school career led to a scholarship to Troy University to play softball as a centerfielder for the Trojans. After a successful freshman career, she switched focus to devote her time to education. She transferred to UAB, and graduated with a bachelor's and master's in Materials Science Engineering in 2014 from University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Marcy currently works for Southern Company. She has been married to Nick Myers for 10 years. They have two daughters, Lynlee and Haven, and they are expecting their first son in October. She is excited for her children to start playing sports. She wants them to learn the many lessons that dedication to athleticism can teach, such as: teamwork, perseverance, and the benefits of work ethic and practice.
